Keywords: drought – water scarcity – water sources – plan

The paper presents the preparatory phase of the draft of the drought management plan in the Czech Republic in the commenting process. The plan is a basic document of drought protection. It is to be used to coordinate activities in a given area during periods of drought and water scarcity. The plan is a summary of the area's description in terms of water resources and the water supply system, organizational and technical measures needed to prevent or mitigate damage to basic human needs and property, economic activity and the environment related to water demands during the drought.
